

Karma and the Great Directional Flow of the Universe

Just as gravity is a law that has directional pull toward the Earth, and that interacts with our actions ...

... the great directional flow of the cosmos has directionality. When we flow with it, our efforts are amplified and leveraged (“good karma”). When act, think, and intend things that are out of alignment with that directional flow, we are attempting to swim against the flow. This creates increasingly large forces of opposition – our opportunity to turn around. But if we persist in oppositional choices, that great flow will turn us around and we experience “bad karma,” which is simply the forces doing a course correction.

Directional flow of the universe

Choices that align with the flow

Choices that oppose the flow